Land & Water Awarded Gold Standard Constructionline Certification

Land & Water is delighted to have been awarded the Gold Standard Constructionline certification.

This is a huge achievement for Land & Water, who previously held the Silver Standard Constructionline certification and have been working hard over the past few months to achieve a higher certification level.

Constructionline is the UK's leading procurement and supply chain management service, helping construction companies and tier one contractors choose the best suppliers for their project.

The transition from silver to gold means that Land & Water can now provide better and faster support for their commercial partners, while bringing an added layer of confidence for new customers who may be looking for contractors to partner with. It also means that Land & Water has secured an extended Verified PQQ; aligning with other gold level members on our ability to abide by legislation in areas such as Modern Slavery, Anti-bribery and Corruption and Equal Opportunities.

In addition to the Gold certification, Land & Water has also received the Acclaim accreditation. This means that tier one contractors can now be assured that Land & Water's own sustainability goals, policies, procedures and health & safety objectives are in line with their agendas and standards.

Commenting on Land & Water's newly achieved Gold Standard Constructionline certification, Jayne Hornsby, Head of Estimating and Business Development at Land & Water, said "We're delighted to have achieved the Gold Standard Constructionline certification in recognition of the quality and reliable service we offer to tier one contractors and other partners here at Land & Water. The team has worked extremely hard over the past few months to achieve this certification. We're looking forward to continuing work with our partner contractors and starting new relationships with those that this accreditation opens the doors to".
